2025 nonfiction hotlist.

23 ambitious nonfiction projects with extraordinary creative potential, each looking for the support to move forward.

welcome to the nonfiction hotlist

We believe creators and storytellers are the lifeblood of our industry and deserve more pathways to bring their visions to life.

This curated collection represents 23 ambitious projects that have demonstrated extraordinary creative potential but need support to move forward.

OUR INVITATION

While funding and distribution remain universal needs for all these projects, we believe there are many ways to help reduce costs and build momentum.

Look through these projects with an eye for how you might contribute. Each page identifies specific needs, from production support to technical expertise to strategic connections.

why this matters

The marketplace needs ambitious, unusual, and visionary nonfiction projects. When we collaborate as a community, we create new possibilities and counter the risk-aversion of traditional gatekeepers. Every contribution, whether financial investment or in-kind support, generates meaningful momentum, giving creators more leverage.

Supporting these projects strengthens not only their individual journeys but the broader health and vibrancy of our entire nonfiction ecosystem. The hundreds of other remarkable submissions we received confirm the wealth of untapped storytelling potential waiting for champions.

the animated mind of oliver sacks

Newly uncovered recordings and immersive animation trace Oliver Sacks' early work with patients and the private conflicts behind it.

SUMMARY

A newly uncovered trove of personal audio and video recordings, combined with immersive animation, traces Dr. Oliver Sacks' early work with patients alongside the private conflicts shaping his inner life, revealing how a brilliant, humane, yet flawed man sought to understand neurological disorder and communicate it through writing that blurred the line between patient and doctor.

the arrival center

Inside the Roosevelt Hotel, New York's modern-day Ellis Island, as asylum seekers and the city workers who serve them face its closure.

SUMMARY

THE ARRIVAL CENTER is an immersive documentary filmed inside the epicenter of New York's migrant crisis. The Roosevelt Hotel in midtown Manhattan is a modern day Ellis Island, open 24/7 and staffed by hundreds of city workers. The operation manages intake, provides vital healthcare, and connects families to services. Hundreds of families also live at the hotel on a temporary basis. The film is a glimpse into the lives of these asylum-seekers and those of everyday New Yorkers who keep the place running.

Against a backdrop of growing risk for immigrants and sanctuary cities once the new administration comes to power, City Hall decides to close the Arrival Center and families seeking security face difficult choices.

Four Chinese immigrant dancers, average age 70, chase their dream of performing on the grand stage.

SUMMARY

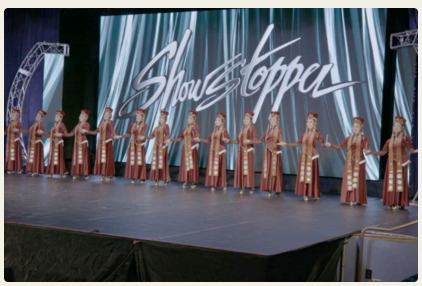

AUNTIES is a heartwarming and inspirational tale that follows mainly 4 Chinese immigrants, with an average age of 70, as they pursue their dream of performing on the grand stage. Led by their dedicated dance coach Yaya, these amateur dancers form a tight-knit community bound by their passion for dance. Through their journey, the film explores themes of aging, mortality, the immigrant experience, and the transformative power of dance in bringing people together. At its core, the story illustrates that the journey of self-discovery knows no age limits, echoing the timeless essence of coming-of-age narratives.

daddy

After her father comes out late in life, a filmmaker spends five years documenting her Southern family's search for acceptance.

SUMMARY

Facing her father's late-in-life coming out and her mother's broken heart, a filmmaker embarks on a poignant journey documenting over five years, her family's struggle with identity, grief, and acceptance in the American South. As the years pass, the film becomes an unexpected exploration of intergenerational queerness, revealing a universal story of family, forgiveness, and the enduring search for belonging.

DADDY is one family's coming-of-age story that began as an old man's coming-out story. It's about the unknowability of the people we love most, and the desire to try anyway.

earth to michael

Before his astronaut father heads back to space, a son asks him to explore the distance between them.

OFFICIAL SELECTION Telluride Film Festival 2025

EAST COAST PREMIERE DC/DOX 2026

SUMMARY

Before a Commander leaves Earth to usher in a new era of spaceflight, his son asks him to explore the unresolved space between them.

Michael last went to space when Nico was six. During his time in orbit, the family broke apart. Although Michael returned to Earth, he never came home. Now he's headed back to space, 15 years later. Can Nico bridge the distance before he leaves?

Equal parts interstellar and intimate, this coming-of-age story confronts two men of different generations and sexualities, asking us what sacrifices we'll make for our loved ones to achieve their dreams.

erin's law

A survivor's law protecting children has passed in 38 states. The film investigates who is blocking it in the other 12.

SUMMARY

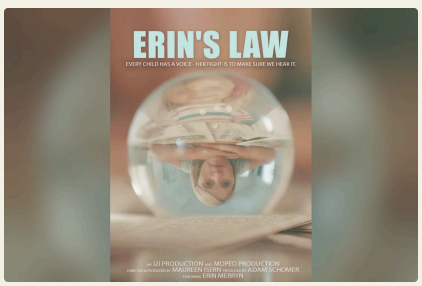

The true David vs Goliath story of Erin Merryn, as featured on Oprah and Katie Couric, who turned her experience of childhood sexual abuse into a mission that gives a voice to millions of children. Having passed Erin's Law in 38 states, we investigate the blocking of the law in the remaining 12, revealing the uncalculated costs of child sexual abuse to individuals and society, and the negligence of legislators failing to protect America's children. Erin's heroic story is an uplifting reminder of the power of determination and hope, that the truth can no longer be silenced.

father figures

A filmmaker turns to puppets to reach a father who opens up more to his ventriloquist dummies than to his family.

SUMMARY

A newly retired theater director, Bruce, begins creating internet videos featuring intimate conversations with his growing collection of ventriloquist dummies. Jealous of the fact that Bruce is far more open with his dummies than his own family, his daughter Emma embarks on a process of collaborative filmmaking, using puppets. FATHER FIGURES tells the story of Emma's attempt to repair her fraught relationship with her dad by exploring the psychological depths and possibilities of his strange new hobby.

the grind

A tech worker turned adult film performer confronts injury, debt, and the economics of selling sex online.

SUMMARY

Leo Vice is a tech worker turned sex worker who's living his dreams as a male pornstar. But faced with the realities of injury, debt, and the punishing economics of selling sex in the digital age, can he survive the grind? THE GRIND brings you into the industry that shapes modern sexuality, through the eyes of workers who offer their bodies in service of the infinite scroll. Leo's escape from office life and initiation into the porn industry challenge our definitions of sex, love, race, and work, while his aspirations are nothing less than the American dream writ large.

making the line

Two queer Native Hawaiian master teachers lead their students into the world of competitive hula.

WORLD PREMIERE
Hawai'i International Film Festival
2026

SUMMARY

MAKING THE LINE is a character-driven feature documentary that delves into the captivating world of competitive Hula. At its core, the film poignantly explores tradition, resilience, and identity.

The film follows two queer Kanaka Maoli (Native Hawaiian) Kumu Hula (master teachers of Hula), partners in both life and leadership, and their hāumāna (students), a diverse group of Native Hawaiian athletes. Together, their stories reveal the camaraderie, sisterhood, and brotherhood forged through competition. Audiences will find themselves rooting not just for a win, but for the preservation of a culture and the future of those who carry it forward.

movement

Behind the scenes with the choreographers who shape Super Bowl halftime shows, Broadway, and the Eras Tour.

SUMMARY

MOVEMENT invites us behind the scenes of the world's most visionary choreographers. Inspired by "20 Feet from Stardom," a film that celebrated often-overlooked backup singers in music, MOVEMENT looks at the challenges and triumphs that shape a career in dance and showcases the evolution of dance as a form of cultural storytelling. From iconic live performances like the Super Bowl halftime show to viral music videos, from Broadway to the silver screen, choreographers Sienna Lalau (BTS, J-Lo), Mandy Moore ("La La Land," Taylor Swift "Eras Tour") and others have left indelible marks on the dance world. MOVEMENT examines the emotional, cultural, and personal layers behind dance's power to connect people worldwide.

state of gambling

The lawyers who took down Big Tobacco build the first landmark case against online sports betting.

SUMMARY

The biggest game in sports isn't on a court. It's in court. STATE OF GAMBLING exposes the dark underbelly of America's booming online sports betting industry.

Follow two Boston lawyers, the same men who took down big tobacco decades earlier, as they build the first landmark case against sports gambling corporations, while the lobbyists try to stop them, and a young addict's rollercoaster journey is caught in the middle of it all.

For the past 18 months, the team has been attending Gambling Anonymous meetings, working with two Pulitzer Prize-winning writers from the New York Times covering the topic, and building strong connections with central characters.

talked to death

Talk radio star Alan Berg's on-air confrontations with neo-Nazis led to his murder by a white nationalist cult.

SUMMARY

Crazy, charismatic, and provocative, Alan Berg was a talk-radio star whose on-air confrontations with Neo-Nazis would lead to his murder by a cult of white nationalists known as The Order. Three decades later, The Order continues to inspire deadly violence in the name of white nationalism, while Berg's profound legacy has become a clarion call in our fight against prejudice and hate. The singular Marc Maron narrates and executive produces.

Originally pitched as a multi-episodic series, TALKED TO DEATH has been re-conceived as a feature documentary, for more flexibility to engage with independent financiers and producers who recognize the relevance of this timely story in the context of our current political climate.

vestibule

A filmmaker chronicles her decade-long fight with a vulvovaginal disorder and a medical system that dismisses it.

SUMMARY

VESTIBULE is the story of one woman's fight for sexual health, pleasure, and bodily autonomy. Combining verite footage with imaginative dance sequences and intimate voiceover, filmmaker Riley Hooper chronicles her decade-long journey with Vestibulodynia, a vulvovaginal disorder. What feels like a failure of her body becomes an invitation to advocate for herself in a society and medical system that so often dismisses women and people with vulvas. And what begins as a quest for pain-free sex becomes a multigenerational story of resilience, dignity, and self-discovery.

walk with me

A 768-mile protest march ends in a shooting, and competing accounts leave the victim facing charges.

SUMMARY

WALK WITH ME follows a group of Milwaukee activists on a 768-mile march to Washington, D.C. protesting the murder of George Floyd. Along the way, their peaceful march collides with hostility in rural Pennsylvania, culminating in a late-night shooting that injures activist Cino Thurman.

In the aftermath, radically different versions of the event take hold. While the marchers recount chaos and terror, local authorities and community members advance a competing account that leads to the shooter walking free and Cino, the victim, facing criminal charges. The case becomes a flashpoint where opposing realities collide and the limits of justice are exposed.

whale like me

Richard Wright's grandson spends ten years brokering encounters between whales and the people who hunt them.

SUMMARY

WHALE LIKE ME follows Malcolm's improbable 10-year quest to understand whales and broker close encounters between whales and the humans who hunt them, an epic journey that leads him to gain unprecedented access into the guarded world of whaling, while upending his career-oriented life to bring him back to the slave plantation where his grandfather was born.

Malcolm Wright's grandfather was African American activist and author Richard Wright (Native Son, Black Boy, The Outsider, The Man Who Lived Underground). Malcolm is a conservationist, filmmaker and human rights dialogue facilitator.

SUMMARY

WHEN WE ALL GET TO HEAVEN is an 11-part audio documentary that tells the story of how one of the first gay-positive churches, the Metropolitan Community Church of San Francisco, faced the personal, social, and political trials of the AIDS epidemic, including the deaths of hundreds of members. The project is based on an archive of 1200 rescued recordings of worship services from the height of the AIDS crisis, 1987-2003. It follows this community as it struggles to make meaning of illness, death, and isolation while caught between two worlds: a religious world saying gays had no place and a gay rights movement saying God had no place.
